LAXMAN SAGAR, PALI

An exclusive leisure destination

An Overview

Sprawling over 32 acres at the fringe of the Badlands of India, Lakshman Sagar was built in the late 19th century as a hunting lodge by the then Thakur of Raipur, Lakshman Singh Ji to host other noble families and British emissaries. As a continuation of the hospitality and traditions of the house of Raipur, Kunwar Manavjeet Singh Raipur has envisioned a Getaway much like his forefather Thakur Lakshman Singh Ji. Kunwar Manavjeet Singh along with Inderpal Singh Kochhar of the Sewara Group have developed this Heritage property with a very conservationist view keeping in mind the captivating natural topography of the region which is ideal for relaxation. The architecture as well as design has been done with an eye for details. The activities have been tailored personally by them for their guests.

Our Comments

(The property was visited by our product team in August 2010.)

- The property has a theme based concept with the exteriors giving a local village like look whereas the interiors are modern and luxurious.
- It is a 2 night destination at the most.
- It requires a lot of walking as it is located on a hilly terrain.
- Due to use of air coolers, the humidity is very high in monsoons. The property is therefore recommended to be used during October to March only.
- There are no doors or curtains separating the living rooms from washrooms in the cottages.
- During the summers there are a lot of insects and bugs due to the topography, so it is recommended that the property is not used in summers.
- The cottages are far away from each other and from the main sections, so there is a need to have a dedicated house keeping team near the cottage clusters, which at present was lacking.
- The resort does not have Wi-Fi or internet connectivity at present.

We have given our suggestions to the management of the property and they will be taking action on them shortly.
